New Program: Home Access and Home Access for Heroes

We have a new program at CIDNY, Home Access and Home Access for Heroes. The Access to Home and Access to Home for Heroes programs help individuals with disabilities, including veterans, make their homes safer and more accessible. Through this initiative, we assist eligible homeowners and renters with modifications that support mobility, independence, and quality of life.

The Access to Home for Heroes program allows us to focus more directly with veterans to help get them the assistance and upgrade they need.

From accessibility upgrades to essential home adaptations, our team works to ensure individuals can live safely and comfortably in the place they call home.

Access to Home and Access to Home for Heroes is funded by the New York State Homes and Community Renewal.

Discount Tickets: Trash at PAC NYC

The folks at PAC NYC are sharing a discount to the new show, Trash, created by Deaf artists James Caverly and Andrew Morrill, who also star in the play.

About the show: Living together is one thing. Understanding each other? That can get messy. Tim and Jake may be Deaf roommates sharing an apartment in the city, but they're polar opposites—each with very different views on what it means to be Deaf in a hearing world. When it comes to taking out the trash, they spiral into a comic and insightful examination of their personal garbage—and their perceptions of each other's lives. Performed almost exclusively in ASL (American Sign Language), Trash employs surprising theatrical devices that allow all audiences to understand the play (and each other) in profoundly new ways.

Tickets and more information about the show can be found at: <https://pacnyc.org/whats-on/trash/>

Use code TRASH20 during checkout to unlock $20 tickets, limit 4 per order.
